

I am

By: Francis Matubis (3J – 2010-2011)

I am a man who is lost from the light
I am a being who has lost his whole life
I am also the angel of death

I am also the one who gives us hope
I am the Scales that which the world holds I am a stewards to which He entrusted for I am my Lord's reflection, His image not forgotten
I am one of his children whom He saved from sin as if by fate's chance, or heaven's decree
I am only a mere mortal man who has found His light
May we continue to do what is right to live our life, to show our faith to follow their rules that we obey always loyal to do their tasks like the puppets we are under fate's hand masked But we can fight, break away free from their clutches, I promise to thee Though we may be weak, but can act as one to stand up strong to defend what is right
Rise up my brethren, join the fight

Charity

By: Angelo Lantin (3E – 2010-2011)

Charity, a gift of peace.
When you give without a lease.
Whence in burden you decide
To put your troubles to the side.
When the ones around you are
The only thoughts within your heart.
When you listen to them in your head.
When you give a tired soul a bed.
When your thoughts go not a stray
But forward, to a brighter day.
A shining light through darkness breaks.
A hope to all downtrodden wakes,
Trample not upon your soul
And give until your days grow old.
 For charity is a gift of peace.
 When you give without a lease.

We Find Out
By: Kuks

Think before you act, or even talk
And you even run after you walk
Nature, that's how they do the magic Change it, and sure it would be tragic

The lamb and the lion, well that's how Good is the last, that's the earthly vow
Bad is the first, always take over
What's right? Let us find out together

Maybe bad is good, you run then walk
And maybe thinking after you talk
And nature's just magic, how tragic
Oh sure, that would make me really sick

And when the unwanted just occurs
And when the truths you say just transfers
Transfers to lies, unavoidable
Consequences, just unstoppable
